Middle Left: The clarinets blast out a tune between the j.v. and varsity boys basketball game. Bottom Left: The pep band attends most of the home boys basketball games.

The goal of the 1983 Tiger Marching Band was to win on the football field whether the team did or not. At the start of each half time performance, cries of "Let's blow 'em away!" could be heard. Most of the time, that's what happened.

The N.B.H.S. band program improved tremendously this year! The progress could be heard on the football field, as well as the concerts held throughout the year, such as the Christmas concert and the Spring concert.

This year the band was under the direction of Mr. James Mitzel. Mr. Mitzel received his college education at Ohio State University. He insisted on band members giving 100 percent at all times. Along with the students involved, he constantly tried to "Be the BEST!"

A New Beginning

Though small and inexperienced, the N.B.H.S. choir had a good year. They performed well at their concerts, and took several trips. These trips were learning experiences where the students had the chance to listen to the talents of other musical groups. One of these was a trip to Otsego where the choir performed and also watched and listened to other swing choirs perform.

The aspect of being a swing choir was new to the program this year. One advantage of such a small group was flexibility. The size of the choir allowed them to experiment with dance, and also to sing popular songs which they enjoyed working on.

Mrs. Steiner was the new director. She helped the members to have confidence in themselves and to really want to do well.

A Time Awaited By All . . .

June 3, 1984, 2:30 o'clock — a time and day that the Class of '84 had awaited a long time. The class of fifty-one students entered the high school gym to "Pomp and Circumstance". They were welcomed by Rev. Charles Clere. Mr. Bibler then handed out special awards honoring the top ten percent of the class. They were: Cindy Chapman, Dawn Williams, Lyn Parsons, Bev Peters, and Elaine Hall. Honor addresses were given by Dawn Williams, Lyn Parsons, and Cindy Chapman. Jamie Orwick and Lyn Parsons provided special music. A keynote address was given by Dr. Franklin B. Walters, State Superintendent of Schools. Mr. Fred Trout accepted the class and presented the graduates with their diplomas. The commencement ended with the recessional. It was a day of emotion: a day worth waiting for.
