EXCHANGE STUDENT

N.B. Welcomes Claudia

"Young people in my country are more old-fashioned," observed Claudia Villaneuva, senior exchange student from Mexico. Claudia spent the school year with the family of John and Nancy Sponsler.

According to Claudia, one of the biggest differences between her country and the U.S. is the lifestyle of teenagers. In her country certain social and family traditions are maintained quite strictly. College is like an extension of high school, says Claudia. Most young people do not go away to college, but they live with their families until they are married.

Boy/girl relationships differ in Mexico too. "We are more old-fashioned, said Claudia. "Boys call on girls to get permission to visit, and they are very careful not to cuss around us." Although Claudia had some adjusting to do during her stay in the U.S., she found the folks in North Baltimore to be very friendly. "People accepted me right off the bat. You never realize how good it makes a person feel to be accepted from the start. I love America. I will miss it!"

This past year the Drama Club presented two plays. "The Diary of Anne Frank" was performed in November 1986. Mrs. Fran Weith directed the play. The cast consisted of 10 members: Susie Swope, Bryan Apple, Scott Ditto, Carrie Bauer, Amy Bauer, Tony Smith, Sarah VanDenEynde, Lynn Ducat, John Gerdeman, and Brian Roberts.

Scott Ditto, a senior, directed "Love is Murder." The play was held Saturday, April 11, and Sunday afternoon, April 12. The cast consisted of 10 members: Bryan Apple, Amy Bauer, Carrie Bauer, Susie Swope, Nick Brooks, Beth Williams, Jenny Schultz, Mike Swope, Vanessa West, and Scott Ditto.

Students put many hard hours into the plays. The cast members aren't the only people, however, to be given credit. The stage crew, people who did odds and ends jobs, and the people who helped with the artwork also deserve credit for the time and effort they put into the plays.

UNDER CONSTRUCTION

Building Improvements Almost Complete

By Mike Trout

A few years ago the school board and administrators saw need for expansion and renovation in the high school building. Through a great effort by administrators, faculty, and those closely related to the school, North Baltimore managed to get a levy passed and the construction started. In the early summer of 1986 it was decided to rebuild the inside of the high school lockerrooms, break ground in July for a new cafeteria, renovate the old cafeteria into a new library and finally reconstruct the old library into a choral room.

As of this year three fourths of the project is complete. The lockerrooms have been improved, the new cafeteria is complete and in use, and the library was reopened during second semester.

The only project left to complete over the summer of 1987 was renovating the old library into a choral room.

Although the renovations caused a bit of chaos during the first semester of the school year (along with great change for students in the second semester of the school year), they now stand as a source of pride for the school and community.

Erica Bower Crowned 1987 Queen

By Mike Landrum

It was a dark and stormy night. The weather promised to be nasty for the Homecoming parade and game. The queen and her court were nervous that their night of glory would be ruined by the horrible onslaught of pouring rain. The cars were polished and ready. The high school band waited to begin the long walk down the field. Then the first sample of the night's weather hit. It was only a simple shower, but it created havoc.

The game was by far the highlight of the night. It is indeed nice to win a game; it is even better to win on Homecoming. The North Baltimore Tigers beat the Seneca East Tigers twelve to six going into overtime. Clair Crouse scored the winning touchdown for the Tigers.

Before the game came the ceremonies. The 1986 queen, Susie Seiler, returned to crown the 1987 queen, Erica Bower. Erica's court included the following: Deann Heinze, first senior attendant; Lisa Allison, second senior attendant; Beth Ebersole, junior attendant; Lisa Sterling, sophomore attendant; and Andrea Baltz, freshman attendant.

From the entire Tiger Staff, congratulations!

INCREDIBLE STUDENT MAKEOVERS

the outcome was fabulous.

STEP 3—Contacts: this goes without saying.

STEP 4—Clothing: with the help of two magnificent designers, the change was like night to day. So many things can be done in the name of fashion and we really like the look we created with these two. STEP 5—Counseling: because of their past lifestyles, intense counseling sessions took place. They included such topics as: "Manners and Etiquette for the Party Animal," "How to Live an Exciting Life," and "How to party until 3 am and sleep until noon."

These two students are now leading exciting, happy, healthy lives and look good too! If you have the same problems these two had, don't worry—there is help. Just send $19.95 to:

While walking through the halls of NB High, I ran into quite a few people who appeared to have gone shopping for their clothing at 'NERDS-R-US.' After a discussion with my colleagues, we decided to give two students—one male, one female—a chance at a new look and a new life. We all agreed that we would use the two who appeared most in need. So no feelings would be hurt, we have excluded their names from this feature article.

Because of the severity of Subject A's (male) and Subject B's (female) conditions, we took their wardrobes and burned them. We saw this was going to be harder than we thought. We realized that money cannot be an issue when you are fashion conscious, so we went all out.

SENIOR TRIP

At 12:15 in the morning on April 23, the Seniors left N.B. and headed to Washington D.C. When they left, the excitement level was running pretty high. By the time they returned to N.B. at 6 in the morning on April 26, everyone was pretty much beat. They toured the White House, the Capitol, Mount Vernon, the National Cathedral, and Arlington National Cemetery. They also visited various memorials including the Vietnam, Jefferson, Lincoln, and the Washington Monument.

On the class trip, the Seniors met a life-long friend—Mary Poppins, their tour guide, who toured them until they thought they would drop. And on April 25, a major demonstration was held at our nation's capitol protesting aide to the Contra rebels. The Seniors had little time to get into trouble, but just ask anyone on the trip, and you'll be able to find a good story or two . . .

WASHINGTON D.C.

1987 SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

Well, here it is, 25 years since I (CHRISTY LEY) left NBHS. I can't believe I left my teaching and coaching job at USC to journey across the country to get together with Ms. REED and MR. BECKER.

Well, 75 and 18 look the same, but I can't believe the LK. It expanded to a 350-room motel and a restaurant that seats 500 people. You would never believe it is run by ANN HUFF. She hired TODD BONEY as her head chef. He received his training in the Army then completed it in Paris.

I see LISA ALLISON and JOHN STEWART got married and have 5 kids. They now own and operate Stewart's Elevator and Implement. Their biggest customer is MIKE TROUT. He owns all of the farmland in Wood County.

What a shock! I've just seen MARK REICHENBACH pass me in a Driver's Education car. I heard he teaches health and driver's ed. at NBHS.

I did receive a few letters from some of my old classmates.

CLAUDIA VILLANUEVA and TOM HILLARD married and moved to Mexico. They have 2 little Hillards and TOM is selling restaurant parts and carpet. Hillard's Carpet has relocated in Mexico City.

ANN RISTER got her wish. She met Billy Idol on his tour, dated and married. Ann is now Bill's hairdresser and mother to their 4 children.

MARIE SPONSLER wrote and told me she has her own restaurant in Chicago and she is hosting a talk show in her spare time.

GREG FROST graduated from college and was drafted by the Baltimore Orioles. He is getting too old to play now so he is their pitching coach.

SHELLY RISTER has been in the Air Force, and she is one of the few female test pilots for the space program. It was her notes that made the space station on Mars what it is today.

LISA HERNANDEZ and TAMMY WILLIAMS live in Washington D.C. Tammy dates the head of security at the White House. She met him on the class trip. She runs a gag store which has chains throughout the U.S. Lisa is also doing very well. She owns Bob's Boutique, which specializes in big earrings and mini skirts.

ROBIN STERRETT is still in college working on her 4th PHD. She has practically every degree you can achieve.

DEAN ISAACS, famous science fiction writer, is affiliated with a large publishing company, and his latest story will be made into a movie that is titled "The Blob That Ate Washington, D.C." It will star Darrell Clark as President Reagan, and Diane Oberdorf as the heroine who saves the city.

The last letter I got from GREG ATKINS has him in Colorado playing pro ball for the Denver Broncos. I did hear he was up for nomination to the football hall of fame. Greg never married, but he is currently dating one of the Bronco cheerleaders.

I have to hurry to meet Ms. Reed and Mr. Becker at the Police Station. BRETT WEAVER, who is chief, brought them in from Zeigler's Care Center. SUSAN ZEIGLER owns and operates what used to be Blakely's Care Center.

RICH ROSE bought out Swartz's and now has "Rosey" gas stations located all over the U.S.

I saw CHRIS JONES standing in front of Kelley's. He is the head mechanic there.

LISA COPPLER passed by as I got out of my car. She told me she was district manager at Meijer's.

I noticed across the street the dental college operated by AMY DOWNS and AMY STEWART. They have branch colleges in Lima, Toledo, and Columbus.

I was surprised Mr. Becker has aged so, but Ms. Reed looks the same as ever. They have kept up on the where-a-bouts of many classmates.

They told me TINA HUNT left town and now lives in West Virginia.

SHELLEY MANGES, ERICA BOWER, and DEANN HEINZE got together and formed a traveling tag team wrestling group. They tour the world and have been asked back to many places repeatedly.

MISSY ARCHER works as a computer programmer for IBM. Sometimes she breaks them so they send for COTTERMAN and SHAMP COMPUTER FIX IT COMPANY. These 2 ace repairmen can fix anything.

SUSIE SWOPE lives at Cedar Point and trains people to operate the rides. She did marry and they have 8 little red-haired girls. Susie was offered a contract from Disney World, but she felt Cedar Point needed her.

DEANNA ALTMAN and LAURA PETERS entered politics. They were our first women President and Vice President. Elected in 2010, they led our nation out of many crises and attributed their success to Mr. Lang.

KANDEE BANEY stayed in town and has a crew of women who work for her. They travel from place to place cleaning offices and buildings.

MARY BANEY, who never outgrew the nickname frog, drives the demolition circuit. She probably uses 1 car a week. The greatest mechanic of our time, BOB GRILLIOT, keeps her supplied with wrecks. Bob has shops across the country and spends most of his time traveling from place to place. His right hand man, DOUG FRANCISCO, keeps the books and invests the money

Bob makes. Bob keeps Doug honest because Bob keeps the calculator.

BEN GERDEMAN and GALEN GERIG finally made the big time. Both of them ended up as Big "10" coaches. Ben is the head sumo wrestling coach for Michigan, and Galen is head football coach at Ohio State.

MICHELLE CONINE left town with Rob and they started an accounting firm in L.A. They ended up with 10 kids.

Michelle said they have many famous clients, and one of them is KEVIN BOWERS, the lead singer in the new rock group Iron Maiden II. His hair is now down to his ankles.

JULIE TATHAM, head nurse at San Francisco General, occasionally comes home to visit. The last time home she said she had seen SCOTT DITTO and he was doing fine. Scott opened a brain surgery hospital and in his spare time runs a little place called the Washing Well.

DION GONYER and DEAN TAFT married twins. Dion and Dean opened a small engine repair service called D and D. Their best customer is NIKKI CLEMMONS. She is always tearing up the engine in her car, but she puts many miles on her car going to seminars on a new product, Nikki's Nails. These nails are better than Lee nails, for they won't break off during basketball games.

VICKI FLORES talked CHERI BROGAN and TINA MIDDLETON into moving to Arizona. They operate a guide service to Mexico and the Indian Reservations. Mr. Becker took the trip they offered, and he only lost his luggage, his wife, and his American Express card.

During my stay in NB, I kept waiting to discover what the infamous CLINT BUTLER was up to. I was surprised to learn that he owns what used to be Roberts IGA. He is also a hired terrorist for anyone with the right price.

THE END

School-Business Partnerships Flourish

By Clint Butler

In April of 1986 a new program began at North Baltimore Schools when Diane Neuman's reading class traveled across town to Blakely Care Center to read to the residents. Since then eight more School-Business Partnerships have been formed and still more are pending.

The program was spearheaded by Leona Benard, director of North Baltimore's Community Involvement Program. Mrs. Benard has been instrumental in setting up the partnerships, which are based on the "adopt a school" programs in large cities. In choosing new matches she looks for ones that will not rely solely on the business' expertise, but on both partners working together for mutual benefits.

Currently the list of partnerships includes: Dianne Neumann's sixth grade reading class with Blakely Care Center; Mark Detamore's sixth grade class with Arlo's Sweet Shop; The Mid-Am Banking Center with Carol Reed's high school math classes; Tim Weber's Industrial Arts Department with Automated Building Components; Mike Csontos' middle school science classes with the Hancock-Wood Electric Co-op; Mary Jean Mason's journalism class with the North Baltimore News; Vern Bame's Chemistry and physics classes with Air Products; Rafe Becker's Art Department with the Questette's Club; and Tom Shafer's middle school Ohio History classes with John Newlove Realty. The interactions vary but are quite important to both partners.

Mrs. Neumann's class reads to the Blakely residents one hour a month.

Mid-Am has given tours of both its North Baltimore facility and the headquarters in Bowling Green, as well as made presentations to the students.

The Industrial Arts students prepare mailings for A.B.C., and in return they have instructed Mr. Weber in the computer aided drafting (CAD) process. NBHS seniors Shelley Manges and John Shamp are employed by the Company. Manges does secretarial work and Shamp works in the Computer Department.

Hancock-Wood has given the students a tour of their facilities and has made several presentations. In return, the students prepare mailings.

Mrs. Mason's class writes stories for the N.B. News and a student, Mike Landrum, is employed there.

Air products gave the students a tour and an opportunity to talk with the plant managers.

The purposes of this program are to extend the walls of the classroom into the community; influence students' thinking and living; to improve school-community relations; and also to prepare the students for a career after high school.

School-Business partnerships are becoming valuable components of the educational process. By providing work experience, loaning personnel, granting funds, and actively supporting public schools, the business community makes contributions that cannot be measured in dollars and cents. Schools and businesses working together to produce better students and better employees is an exciting concept. The end results are a more literate society, better prepared employees, and an America that is proud of its schools.
