Academics

This year was an exciting year for learning. Our North Baltimore students learned new facts and theories. Each and every class was an adventure in many ways.

This year the English classes learned about famous poets, the Social Studies classes wrote about personal history, had mock trials, and even created their own governments. The Math classes solved many problems, and the Science classes went to the Rocky Ford Creek to explore the laws of nature.

Most students were involved this year and all the teachers enjoyed working with them and teaching them all the important things that they'll need to value in life!

When you're cooking in the kitchen,
You're learning all the while
To pour and measure, mix and stir
And sift flour into a pile.
But after all the work is done,
It will soon be time for dinner.
And when someone asks for seconds,
You'll know you've cooked a winner!
